

Declaration of Human Liberties

This Declaration is universally valid and outlines the God-given Freedoms Human Beings are entitled to by virtue of being Human. This Declaration does not need to be ratified.

Humans have the right to freely exercise the Freedoms listed herein and to employ (alone or in assembly) any means necessary to guarantee such free exercise by themselves and others. States must respect and enforce the Human Liberties listed herein.

There are different territorial/demographic extents ranging from individual to family, community, region and State. Some types of powers to govern grow with the growing territorial and demographic extent, whereas others diminish. Powers of an individual to self-govern within the extents of this Declaration always remain with the individual.

This Declaration defines only negative liberties, that is freedoms from interference from the State and other Persons. Negative liberties always take precedence over positive liberties. Liberties always take precedence over Rights. Liberties enumerated earlier in this Declaration take precedence over those enumerated later. Whenever phrasing such as “the State shall endeavor” is used, it is meant that the State shall abstain from taking (rather than take) action or abolish (rather than create) legislation in such manner as to advance the stated goal.

Law, contracts and administrative/contractual determinations shall not work backwards. Everyone is a Person before the law. All Persons are equal before the law. A Person shall be presumed innocent until proven guilty in all proceedings, including administrative, civil and criminal cases. Administrative penalties without due process before a court of law are strictly prohibited.

Totalitarian states – states which claim to have the right to legislate without being constrained by anything, in particular by the Declaration of Human Liberties – are prohibited. Dictatorial states – states which claim that a single course of action must be prescribed for everyone by a dictatorship of a Person or a majority of People instead of admitting only the solutions compatible with the Human Liberties – are prohibited. Tyrannical states – in particular states where the Legislative, Executive and Judiciary powers are accumulated in the same hands – whether hereditary, self-appointed, mutually elected or even elected in a popular vote – are prohibited.

The responsibility for any violation of the Human Liberties lies always first and foremost with the individual or individuals executing the violation, as well as with any involved organizations. The individuals can and will be held responsible for any violations of the Human Liberties to the full extent of their breaches.

The enumeration of certain liberties, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the People. Liberties enumerated in this Declaration shall take precedence.

In case of doubt, the statements of this Declaration shall be interpreted in such a way as to maximize the Freedoms of the Individual.

1. Freedom of Life

Every Person is free to live.

2. Freedom from Slavery

Every Person is free from slavery and other types of involuntary servitude (e.g. military service). The State shall endeavor as well to decrease voluntary servitude (e.g. wage slavery, debt slavery) and to free People from rigged prices of their services and – to the maximum extent possible – from unreasonable/excessive single employment clauses.

3. Freedom from Torture

People shall be free from torture and inhuman treatment/punishment.

4. Freedom of Ownership

Every person is free to own property alone or in association. No taxes or fees shall be levied upon owned property. If periodic fees, rent, etc. are levied – disguised or not as taxes or other legislatively defined payments on a property – the relationship – true to the reality – shall not be referred to as ownership. Ownership is good. The State shall strive to increase the rate of ownership without the use of debt.

5. Freedom of Movement

Legal residents and visitors have the freedom to move within the State on foot or using any means of transportation. Private ownership of land is encouraged but not at the expense of depriving the general public from enjoyable touristic access to rare natural goods including but not limited to lakes, seas, mountains and caverns. The right of peaceful, non-destructive passage on such private land must be guaranteed. The same applies to private land which would render efficient transportation between public spaces difficult.

Everyone is free to leave any country and return to their country of legal residency and/or citizenship.

People have the freedom of movement and residence on the high seas, in the airs over the high seas, and in all of the outer space. High seas (international/stateless waters) must constitute at least two thirds of the surface of all oceans and seas. The zones governed by States must be specified accordingly. If they choose so, each person can act as a Sovereign on the high seas and determine their own laws on their property (ship, platform, artificial island, etc). On private property on the high seas, laws of the individual Sovereign Owner – if they choose so – always take precedence over the laws of the State of any of the visitors. People enjoy the same freedoms in the airs above the high seas and in all of the outer space.

6. Nutritional Freedom

People can freely introduce to their bodily systems food and other means of sustenance and/or non-nutritional substances.

7. Medical Freedom

People shall have Medical Freedom including but not limited to: the choice of physician and the choice of medication/vaccination/treatment/etc. and whether to have one at all. Access to medication shall not be limited through prescription requirements unless a condition of penury is present.

8. Freedom of Arms

People are free to keep and bear arms. Legal gymnastics aiming to infringe on this Liberty are strictly prohibited.

9. Freedom of Risk

The Roman volenti non fit iniuria doctrine shall be respected. People are free to place themselves in a position where harm might result, knowing that some degree of harm might result, and cannot bring claim against the other party if harm does result under such circumstances.

Limitations are supposed to resolve conflicts between individuals and groups, not protect individuals from themselves. Legislative bans for someone's "own good" in the context of risk taking are null and void. Creation of such laws is prohibited.

10. Economic Freedom

Economic freedom is guaranteed including but not limited to the freedom to pursue a private economic activity. The State shall endeavor to minimize wage slavery, rigging of compensations of salaried employees and – to the maximum extent possible – unreasonable/excessive single employment clauses.

11. Freedom of Speech

Freedom of opinion and expression, freedom of speech, press and other media, academic freedom, artistic freedom and freedom to use any language are guaranteed. Means of expression in physical public spaces may be limited at the community level. Expression in digital spaces must not be limited.

12. Freedom of Education

People are free to pursue any desired education for themselves and have the freedom to choose education for their children.

13. Freedom of Domicile

Legal residents are free to be domiciled anywhere in the State. A person's ownership and/or usage of their principal domicile cannot be compromised by any means or circumstances – direct or indirect. Evictions of any type are strictly prohibited. People engaging in an execution of an eviction abandon their Human Liberties at that time. People domiciled in the public space (homeless people) are free to occupy the space on the first come first served basis.

14. Freedom of Association

People shall be free to associate with whom they please and to such extent as is mutually consensual – both in private and public spaces, including but not limited to relationships such as marriage, commercial transactions, employment, joint business endeavor, political party, State. People shall be free to assume citizenship on the mutual consent basis. Citizens shall be free to renounce citizenship unilaterally. People shall be free to seek and grant asylum/entry on the mutual consent basis. Attempts by third parties to sabotage voluntary associations, including but not limited to the State (e.g. using demographic replacement/divide & conquer tactics) and family (e.g. spreading corrosive ideology to children/young people) are prohibited.

15. Freedom of Parenthood

People are free to marry and found families. Norms of public presentation of families and couples can be regulated at the community level, so that it is not disturbing in the eyes of the communal majority. When Liberties of the majority conflict with Liberties of individuals domiciled in the community, the Compartmentalization Rule must be followed.

People are free to birth and raise children. Institutional separation of a child from its parents can be considered only if the parents compromise the (future) Human Liberties of the child. A healthy parent-child relationship is good, natural and highly desirable, therefore whether an institutionally separated child wants to stay out of association with its parents and whether it benefits from such separation shall be re-evaluated at least twice a year.

Parents shall dispense the Liberties to children under 18 years of age in such scope and measure as they judge appropriate. Parents will determine what types of decisions their children can make and decide in their stead if deemed necessary.

16. Freedom of Self-Governance

Associations of People enjoy similar Liberties to their individual constituents. When the Liberties of legitimate groupings such as communities or States are in an irreconcilable conflict with individual Liberties, Compartmentalization Rule must be followed. Care shall be taken to build robust communities of aligned individuals rather than to have ostracized outliers spread across multiple localities. Furthermore, Democracy is a system where no man rules over another whenever possible and when not possible, they rule in turns. This implies a minimal state and guarantees that every group has the right to rule the portion of time proportional to its numerosity. People are ordained by God and by the natural order of things to be free from other forms of rule than the democratic self-governance under Human Liberties. They can subject themselves to other forms of rule only by mutual consent and unilaterally retract their consent at any time with immediate effect.

17. Freedom from Assault

People shall be free from physical or any other forms of assault against individual, family and State.

People shall enjoy the freedom from poisoning – direct or indirect. It is forbidden to store any substances in the natural environment and/or create any structures and/or employ any devices that might cause by their nature or by the manner in which they are stored, placed or used a chemical, biological or electromagnetic hazard to health and/or life of Humans or any other biological organism.

18. Freedom from Slander

People shall be free from attempts at their good name. Bearing false witness is strictly prohibited.

19. Freedom from Theft

A Person shall be free from theft of physical and intellectual goods.

20. Freedom of Self-Defense

People are free to stand their ground and defend themselves against physical attempts at their Liberties, in particular their physical integrity and their possessions. People are free to help defend Others who require their assistance against assailants. Assailants forfeit their Human Liberties during the time of the crime.

21. Freedom of Tranquility

People shall be free from disturbing behavior by Others both in private and public spaces. In case of systemic conflicts in this regard, the Compartmentalization Rule must be followed.

22. Freedom from (Systemic) Corruption

People shall be free from administrative/governmental corruption – both personal and systemic. Examples of systemic corruption include but are not limited to: arbitrariness, ossified judiciary oligarchies not elected by the People, absence of Human Liberties courts, unelected police directors, officials determining themselves compensation for positions they currently occupy (e.g. the Parliament deciding the compensation for future MPs), easily falsifiable elections (e.g. postal voting or voting without ID checks), politically nominated military commanders, overgrown administrative apparatus, lack of separation of powers (e.g. the Legislative branch electing the Executive branch), state-financed media, legislators participating in stock market (insider trading), state propaganda at schools, obstacles to Freedom of Manifestation, other violations of the Human Liberties, etc.

23. Freedom from Surveillance

A Person shall be free from surveillance and/or tampering with private communications by the State, other People or any other actor.

24. Freedom from Propaganda

People shall be free from state propaganda and opinion manipulation. The State shall not finance actors that engage in such activities domestically or abroad.

25. Freedom from Legal Tender

People are free from the so-called legal tender. Dues defined by a contract are binding in the exact way they are defined and can be satisfied by no other means, unless agreed otherwise by all involved Parties.

26. Freedom from Taxes

Liberties enumerated herein shall not be subject to taxation or fees.

27. Freedom of Manifestation

Freedom of the People to peacefully manifest, alone or in assembly, shall not be infringed. No permits or other legal obstacles to peaceful political manifestation shall be created. Use of agents provocateurs is strictly prohibited. People engaging a peaceful manifestation as agents provocateurs forfeit their Human Liberties during that time.

28. Freedom of Religion

Freedom of thought, conscience, religion and religious practice is guaranteed. Everyone is free to create a religion. Everyone is free to join a religion upon mutual consent. An adherent is free to leave a religion unilaterally.

Limitation of Liberties

Liberties enumerated herein shall be limited only in such cases when the Person concerned infringed upon the Liberties of others, only proportionately and only in presence of irrefutable qualitative and quantitative proofs. Due process shall take place. Defendant shall have the right to appeal.

Political plurality being essential to preservation of Human Liberties, Freedom of Association is limited to the level of State. Creation of superstates/global state is prohibited.

A person may and should be deprived of property earned through violation of Human Liberties.

Compartmentalization Rule

When liberties of different groups of People are in conflict, one or a mix of two strategies shall be used to resolve it:

1. Spatial compartmentalization – where Liberties shall be exercised according to wishes of respective groups depending on the geographical location – with extent proportional to the size of the group;
2. Temporal interleaving – where preferred solutions of respective groups shall be used for a part of each month proportional to the size of the group.

The need for the above solutions and the appropriateness/optimality of their configuration shall be revised periodically.

Pending conflict resolution, Parties shall act in good faith.

Changes from V₄

- Added “States must respect and enforce the Human Liberties listed herein.” in the Preamble.
- After “A Person shall be presumed innocent until proven guilty”, added “in all proceedings, including administrative, civil and criminal cases. Administrative penalties without due process before a court of law are strictly prohibited.”
- Changed “Totalitarian states – states which claim to have the right to legislate without being bound by the Declaration of Human Liberties – are prohibited” to “Totalitarian states – states which claim to have the right to legislate without being constrained by anything, in particular by the Declaration of Human Liberties – are prohibited”.
- Changed “instead of seeking a compromise compatible with the Human Liberties” to “instead of admitting only the solutions compatible with the Human Liberties”.
- Removed “once made” from the “[...] shall not work backwards” paragraph.
- Added “Tyrannical states – in particular states where the Legislative, Executive and Judiciary powers are accumulated in the same hands – whether hereditary, self-appointed, mutually elected or even elected in a popular vote – are prohibited.”
- Added “The responsibility for any violation of the Human Liberties lies always first and foremost with the individual or individuals executing the violation, as well as with any involved organizations. The individuals can and will be held responsible for any violations of the Human Liberties to the full extent of their breaches.”
- Added “In case of doubt, the statements of this Declaration shall be interpreted in such a way as to maximize the Freedoms of the Individual.”
- Added “People have the freedom of movement and residence on the high seas, in the airs over the high seas, and in all of the outer space. High seas (international/stateless waters) must constitute at least two thirds of the surface of all oceans and seas. The zones governed by States must be specified accordingly. If they choose so, each person can act as a Sovereign on the high seas and determine their own laws on their property (ship, platform, artificial island, etc). On private property on the high seas, laws of the individual Sovereign Owner – if they choose so – always take precedence over the laws of the State of any of the visitors. People enjoy the same freedoms in the airs above the high seas and in all of the outer space.”
- Added “Limitations are supposed to resolve conflicts between individuals and groups, not protect individuals from themselves. Legislative bans for someone’s “own good” in the context of risk taking are null and void. Creation of such laws is prohibited.”
- Added “Evictions of any type are strictly prohibited. People engaging in an execution of an eviction abandon their Human Liberties at that time. People domiciled in the public space (homeless people) are free to occupy the space on the first come first served basis.”

- Changed “Parents shall dispense the Liberties to children under 18 years of age in such scope and measure as judged appropriate” to “Parents shall dispense the Liberties to children under 18 years of age in such scope and measure as they judge appropriate”.
- Added “Furthermore, Democracy is a system where no man rules over another whenever possible and when not possible, they rule in turns. This implies a minimal state and guarantees that every group has the right to rule the portion of time proportional to its numerosity. People are ordained by God and by the natural order of things to be free from other forms of rule than the democratic self-governance under Human Liberties. They can subject themselves to other forms of rule only by mutual consent and unilaterally retract their consent at any time with immediate effect.”
- Changed “People shall be free from physical assault against individual, family and State.” to “People shall be free from physical or any other forms of assault against individual, family and State.”
- Added “People shall enjoy the freedom from poisoning – direct or indirect. It is forbidden to store any substances in the natural environment and/or create any structures and/or employ any devices that might cause by their nature or by the manner in which they are stored, placed or used a chemical, biological or electromagnetic hazard to health and/or life of Humans or any other biological organism.”
- Added “or a mix” to the Compartmentalization Rule.